Residential New Build – Great Easton, Leicestershire

brp architects assisted Langton Homes in delivering a high-quality bespoke residential development set on the outskirts of the rural village of Great Easton. Providing a total of 3 units, with a fourth property due for completion late in 2016, the dwellings sit in a courtyard arrangement centered around a small green. As such, the site creates its own distinctive identity given the separation from the main core of the village.

The units offer individual family homes each supported by their own independent outbuildings, which offer garaging for cars as well as further ancillary accommodation such as gyms, games rooms and office / meeting rooms above.

Following the difficulties incurred with securing the initial planning approval for the site a positive response from brp ensured the enhancements made to the revised scheme were deemed acceptable, overcoming objections from both local residents and the Local Authority. Overall the project was completed to an incredibly high standard, using natural local materials – contributing to make the properties appear as if they have been a part of the village landscape for many years already.
