Residential Re-build - Great Glen, Leicestershire

Located within the curtilage of a Grade II Listed Building, this former Coach House was in very poor condition having been substantially modified in the past and was deteriorating as a result.

The client sought permissions from the Local Authority for the demolition and re-building of the Coach House, which was successfully granted on the basis of the replacement building being of a sympathetic design to the original and incorporating similar design features and use of traditional materials.

brp architects were appointed after both Planning & Listed Building Consents were granted to develop of the technical design stages, and to obtain statutory Building Regulation approvals on behalf of the client.

Our appointment also included arrangements for a formal selective tender process with the appointment of a suitable Building Contractor and to oversee the Construction phase of the project.
